COMMUNITY SERVICE A PRIORITY WITH VINCULUM, NATIONAL HEAD START ALLIANCE.

Giving back to non-profits while helping to reduce their business telecomm costs

SAN DIEGO, CA 1 JULY 2008 (BUSINESS WIRE)—Vinculum Communications, Inc. (Vincomm) a San Diego-based international communications company specializing in VoIP technology announced today a powerful new mutual partnership agreement with National Head Start Association (NHSA). With NHSA experiencing current budget cuts and underfunding, Vintalk's VoIP business phone service allows for Head Start programs nationwide to replace their office phone systems with zero upfront costs.

Over the coming months, Vincomm will work with NHSA to educate Head Start programs around the county on the benefits of VoIP telephony, not only in costs savings on basic business phone communications, but increased productivity and connectivity between agents and offices. With time, Vintalk[™] will be able to roll out their hosted business telephone system to NHSA offices nationwide.

Says NHSA Interim CEO Michael McGrady, "Vintalk's solution allows for better communication within our communities while decreasing monthly telecommunications costs. The alliance is structured as a 'give back' relationship, where Vintalk[™] will donate a percentage of all program revenues generated back to NHSA. For every dollar saved on operations such as telecommunications, one more dollar can be spent on helping children and families in the community."

Vintalk[™] recently installed their VoIP telephone system in the NHSA offices in Alexandria, VA. The difference in voice quality compared to their legacy phone system was clearly notable, and Vintalk's robust feature set increased efficiency for their teams. Further, NHSA is now saving a substantial amount of money every month.

"As a leader in IP business telephone service, Vincomm is deeply interested in giving back to the communities in which we live and work," says Scott Goodwin, Chairman and CEO of Vincomm. "The NHSA partnership is a model we can reproduce with other community service organizations. We are able to grow our own client base, and at the same time help these organizations—which struggle to balance limited resources—to not only upgrade their business phone system, but save money and earn additional revenue, which makes everybody happy."
