Vinculum signs, supports Neighborhood House Association

- Unique agreement reduces telecom costs, gives back to the organization, community -

SAN DIEGO – September 22, 2008 – Vinculum Communications, Inc., a San Diego-based international communications company specializing in VoIP technology, announced today a revolutionary agreement relationship with Neighborhood House Association (NHA), San Diego county's largest non-profit multi-purpose human services agency.

The agreement provides NHA with business-grade hosted IP Telephony solutions for its office locations, as well as stellar pricing with equipment leasing options and quarterly charitable contributions from Vinculum.

Additionally, NHA will receive a custom branded solution of Vinculum's Vincall™ product – an online prepaid long distance calling service to offer its employees, vendors, partners and other community programs.

“Our current annual telecommunications costs make up about 15 percent of our operating budget,” say Rudolph Johnson, NHA President and CEO “Our existing telecommunications system was outdated and insufficient to meet the innovative approach to business development and service delivery NHA desired to implement. Through this agreement, not only will our communities benefit, but we will be able to bring all of our locations up-to-date with telecommunications equipment, and take advantage of leading technology that will assist us as we move forward.”

As NHA's phone service provider, Vinculum has designated NHA as a “Flagship Organization” to assist other Head Start organizations nationwide, a school readiness program for low-income children and their families. The two companies will work together on joint marketing initiatives addressing how to bridge communication gaps between area programs and their respective communities. With service programs nationwide currently experiencing budget cuts and funding shortfalls, this collaborative relationship will serve as a model for other nonprofit community programs.

“Vinculum and NHA have worked closely to customize an exclusive solution that leverages technology as an operational tool for providing better services to our community's children, friends and families. We continue to envision more and more opportunities for our company to give back,” says Joseph DePetro, President of Vinculum Communications, Inc. “The NHA agreement is an example of how VoIP can add value to nonprofit organizations that struggle to balance limited resources and ever-increasing program demands.”
